Vaghe Stelle

Antoni de Moragas i Spà, 1983

Hanging lamps

The stars are distant, undefined, vague. Twinkles overhead at night - those are the lights of Vaghe Stelle.

However beautiful an object, place or space is, if it stirs no memories there is no poetry in looking at it. The poetic, in one way or another, is always found in the distant, the undefined, the vague.

This same concept that inspired Giacomo Leopardi's Le Ricordanze, in which the poet refers to the Vaghe stelle dell'Orsa (the vague stars of the Big Dipper), gave rise to Vaghe Stelle, a hanging lamp originally designed for an old textiles warehouse converted into a restaurant: the Brasserie FLO (Barcelona, 1982).

This reedition of architect Antoni de Moragas Spà's piece is an addition to our Design Classics collection, which comprises objects from various modern periods with the twofold aim of bolstering our sometimes dwindling historical memory and generating a critical debate about creation in industrial design that moves beyond fashion.
